INSPIRING ACTIVE COMMUNITY CULTURE

CAN SA is the peak body for community arts in South Australia and is the principal source of community cultural development advice, information and support services in the State. CAN SA is a non-profit membership based organisation, incorporated in 1980, which also has a nationally recognised training arm CANtrain. CAN SA also influences community cultural development nationally through policy development and national projects such as Artwork Magazine and the National Community Cultural Development Website.

*The articles in this issue of Artwork were commissioned by the Community Cultural Development Board (formerly Fund) (CCDB) of the Australia Council's National Critical Debate Project and have been reprinted with kind permission from the CCDF. We wish to acknowledge the efforts of the commissioning editors for the project, Christine Sammers and Judy Spokes. In addition to their editorial role, they also managed the substantial national consultation process with community arts workers which helped shape the content and focus of the project.
